APEX Museum partners with Hosea Feeds the Hungry and Homeless

Atlanta, GA - October 30, 2025

The APEX Museum is partnering with Hosea Feed the Hungry and Homeless to help fill the gap for families suffering from food insecurity. In November, the APEX Museum will accept goods for a $2 discount per donated item. These goods will be delivered to Hosea Feed the Hungry and Homeless headquarters to support their mission to investigate and raise public awareness about the problems facing individuals and families at risk of poverty, and to mobilize financial resources, goods, and volunteers to solve those problems and stabilize households.

The following goods will be collected: yams, green beans, and stuffing. Please drop in to the museum to give back and be enriched by all it has to offer, including its newest limited-time-only exhibit featuring art by artists of the National Alliance of Artists from Historically Black Colleges & Universities.

The APEX Museum (135 Auburn Ave. NE SE, Atlanta, GA 30303), founded in 1978, is Atlanta's first museum dedicated to preserving and presenting African-American history from a local and global perspective. Located in the iconic Sweet Auburn district, the APEX Museum has been dedicated to showcasing the significant and often overlooked contributions of African and African American communities to global culture.
